Body mist or eau de parfum? Compare format before gifting

Body mist and eau de parfum are different product formats. This guide does not rank them; it gives a side-by-side sheet for comparing the actual labels, sizes, prices and return terms of one mist and one eau de parfum before you choose a gift.

What you need

- The two listings or labels you are comparing
- What you know of the recipient’s likes, dislikes and sensitivities
- The two-column comparison sheet and a pencil
- A calculator for price per fluid ounce

Steps

1. Name both products exactly
For each product, write the brand, scent, the format words on the label and the size. Verify the actual selected size on the current listing.

2. Fill both columns the same way
Fill both columns: size, price on the day, price per fl oz (price ÷ fl oz), listed notes, directions and warnings, seller and returns. Do not read the format name as a promise of strength or wear time; this guide makes no strength or wear-time comparison.

3. Check returns and the ingredient list
Check the current return status of each option. FDA notes that fragrance ingredients can cause allergic reactions for some people; ask about the recipient's sensitivities and check the label.

4. Decide from the recipient, not the format
Consider the format the recipient already uses or has requested. If unsure, let them choose or select another kind of gift; no fragrance is guaranteed suitable for every person.

Tips

- Keep sprays away from eyes, flames and heat, and follow the label directions.
- Compare price per fluid ounce only between products you would actually give; a cheaper ounce of a format the recipient does not use is no saving.
- This sheet is free. The optional Amazon link is an affiliate link. The products have not been smelled or tested for this comparison.
