Pack a pair of slippers as a useful winter gift

Measure the box the slippers will travel in, cut paper from two simple formulas, pack the pair in tissue with the tags left on, and add a care card copied word for word from the label plus the gift receipt. The worksheet has the box and paper calculations, a four-line care card and a gift-card section.

What you need

- The slippers with their tags, care label and any box they came in
- A gift box if they arrived without one, and tissue paper
- Wrapping paper, tape, ribbon and a small card
- A tape measure, scissors and a pen
- The gift receipt or the order's return details

Steps

1. Measure the box the pair will travel in

If the slippers came boxed, measure that box. If not, choose a box a little larger than the pair so the lid closes without flattening them. Record length L, width W and height H in inches; divide centimeters by 2.54 to convert before using the formulas.

2. Cut the paper from two measurements

Paper around the box = 2W + 2H + about 2 in of overlap. Paper the other way = L + H + about 1 in, so each end flap folds a little past halfway. Wrap the box loosely in the uncut sheet first and adjust before cutting.

3. Pack the pair in tissue with the tags on

Line the box with tissue and set the slippers in side by side. Leave tags and care labels attached, check current exchange conditions, and keep the wrapped gift away from flames and heaters.

4. Copy the care card from the label

Fill in the care card from the label in the pair, or the care text that came with them, word for word. Tick “Not stated” rather than guessing. Put the card and the gift receipt in the envelope with your note.

Tips

- Note the size on the care card so the recipient can quote it if they exchange the pair.
- If the lid presses down on the pile, use a deeper box rather than squashing the slippers to fit.
- The optional product link is an affiliate link. Check the selected option, size, care directions and current return terms. Other illustrated items are separate.
