Pair scent families on paper before buying a second mist

Scent-family planning worksheet. No purchase or signup required.

List the notes you already enjoy

Record familiar scents and the maker-described note families. Include any fragrances you avoid and whether the recipient actually wants fragrance.

Compare on paper

Use columns for warm, fresh, floral and woody descriptions. Treat this as a shopping vocabulary exercise, not evidence that mixtures will smell good or suit sensitive skin.

Decide whether to try anything

Use a product already owned where possible and follow its label. Ask for samples or advice from an authorized source when appropriate rather than buying multiple full bottles blindly.
